Arkansas Social Studies Standards

“A people without the knowledge of their past history, origin and culture is like a tree without roots.” – Marcus Garvey.

The importance of the Social Studies Curriculum Frameworks to Arkansas K-12 education cannot be overlooked. Parents and educators readily agree on the importance of developing reading, writing and math skills. They even agree in our technological society on the importance of teaching science, but what about social studies? It is through the study of social studies that students become aware of the world around them and how that world directly impacts their lives. By learning about economics, civics and government, geography and history, students are able to develop core beliefs and values, an understanding of how the past has shaped the present and will shape the future, and the interconnectedness of the content areas. It is in the social studies classroom that students learn to listen to conflicting points of view, to form an opinion, to develop the ability to make judgments and to acquire the necessary skills to become participatory citizens.

During the 2015-16 school year, schools across Arkansas implemented the revised Arkansas Social Studies Curriculum Frameworks. These frameworks ask students to acquire content knowledge about civics, government, economics, geography, and history and to develop historical thinking skills. Students develop content knowledge and inquiry skills by asking and answering compelling and supporting questions, gathering and analyzing information from multiple sources, and communicating their conclusions in a variety of formats including writing arguments.

The K-4 standards lay the foundation for students. The focus at these early grades is for students to build practical skills in geography, economics, civics and history, skills such as how to read and create a timeline, map, chart, table or graph. They examine changes over time, chronology and causal relationships from multiple perspectives. The revised strands and content standards are not meant to be taught in isolation. Units and lessons should incorporate as many of the different content areas as possible to further develop student understanding of the interconnectedness of the disciplines.

There are some major changes to the revised curriculum frameworks; these changes are highlighted in two documents: “Outline of Social Studies Content by Grade and Subject” and “Curriculum Shifts,” both located on the Arkansas Department of Education website at <http://www.arkansased.gov/divisions/learning-services/curriculum-and-instruction/curriculum-framework-documents/social-studies-new-courses-valid-july-1-2015>. The foundations for early U.S. and world history are laid in the history strands in Grade 5 (U.S. history beginnings through the 1820s) and Grade 6 (world history beginnings of civilization through 1500).

Another major change to the standards occurs in Grade 7, which now focuses on geography. Because Arkansas has not taught geography in the seventh grade since the 2006 revision of the Social Studies Curriculum Frameworks, many districts and teachers had limited instructional materials that reflected current geography. The Arkansas Geographical Alliance anticipated this need and worked with National Geographic Education to create a teaching resource specifically for Arkansas teachers and aligned to Arkansas standards for Grade 7. The Arkansas page can be accessed at www.nationalgeographic.org/arkansas or from the Arkansas Geographical Alliance website at <http://arkansasgeographicalliance.com/educators/curricular-items/lessons-and-other-items/>. By accessing the site, teachers will find lesson plans, resources, additional readings, extensions and suggestions for remediation along with videos, maps, and primary and secondary sources for the lesson. Best of all it is free! Many of the lessons and instructional materials are adaptable for other classes, such as science, or other grades. Please note that the site is currently being updated.

In Grade 8, students focus on U.S. history from 1800 to 1900, which is another shift from the previous standards. Arkansas frameworks at the eighth grade are better aligned with surrounding states and National Assessment of Educational Progress assessments with this change. The shift to teaching history dividing content by eras rather than the broad survey of history at each grade level provides teachers with the time to delve much deeper and with the rigor necessary for students to develop historical thinking and inquiry skills. U.S. and world history are organized chronologically in Grades 5-12 using the eras and time periods from the National Center for History in the Schools; Arkansas History for Grades 9-12 is organized chronologically using the Encyclopedia of Arkansas eras and timeline.

In order to make connections between different time periods, students need to be held accountable for the learning in previous grades. Sample review units for history at Grade 8 and the high school U.S. and world history courses are available on the ADE's Social Studies page at <http://www.arkansased.gov/divisions/learning-services/curriculum-and-instruction/resource-materials-for-lesson-plans/social-studies>. Teachers can choose to use units at the beginning of the school year to review content covered in previous grades.

Another great resource for social studies teachers at all levels is the C3 (College, Career and Civic Life) Teachers website; the direct link is <http://www.c3teachers.org/inquiries/>. The website contains teacher blogs, Inquiry Design Model (IDM) information, state inquiry HUBS and the NY Toolkit containing 14 annotated and 70 abridged inquiries. These inquiries can be downloaded in PDF or Word format, edited for specific classroom needs and revised for AR standards. This outstanding resource is available free of charge.

Arkansas history also saw some changes with the 2014 revision. Arkansas history in Grades K–6 is integrated in the social studies curriculum. Arkansas law states that students must take one semester of Arkansas history in Grade 7–12, with districts determining which grade. The social studies revision committee developed two courses. The first course is appropriate for students in either Grade 7 or 8. This course is formatted like a social studies course with the four strands – geography, economics, civics and government, and history. The Grades 9-12 course is formatted chronologically like a more traditional history course.

Teachers will have several opportunities for ongoing professional development at all of the Arkansas Education Service Cooperatives. Several social studies teachers will provide a workshop at which K-6 and 7-12 teachers will examine an inquiry appropriate for Grades K-4, 5-8 and 9-12 as they work in small groups to develop their own inquiry for use in the classroom. Participants in these workshops will be able to share the work they produce with each other. Check ESC Works for locations, dates and times. Sign up now! Literacy specialists at the cooperatives will present a workshop on Historical Thinking and Inquiry in the Social Studies Classroom. Teachers will analyze an inquiry and use it to teach historical thinking and literacy skills within the content.

The ADE in cooperation with AETN is bringing Dr. Kathy Swan (lead writer of the C3 Framework) and Dr. John Lee (IDM lead) to the AETN Studio in Conway July 19 and 20 to conduct a two-day workshop on IDM and developing the Arkansas Inquiry HUB. If you are interested in attending this workshop, please e-mail Maggie Herrick, ADE social studies specialist, at margaret.herrick@arkansas.gov; include your name, summer contact information, school, district and the grade you teach.

The Arkansas Social Studies Frameworks and Courses help students think and reason about what is happening in the world around them. Is the study of social studies a necessary skill for students to be prepared for the future? Absolutely! Students will gather and select resources, analyze evidence, examine multiple and sometimes conflicting perspectives, come to their own conclusions and communicate their findings to others in social studies classes. These are skills every student needs in order to be successful in college, career and their community. Arkansas has a set of frameworks that will do just that. The report, based on the results of the 2014-2015 state mandated tests, includes for each high school, the number of students receiving a grade of "B" or above in the corresponding course who scored less than "19" on the ACT math or reading exams. The highlighted section identifies any high school in which twenty percent (20%) or more of the students received a letter grade of "B" or above and scored less than "19" on the ACT math or reading exams.

As required by statute, a copy of this same report is being submitted to the Legislature.

Alternative Education Task Force

Annually, more than 10,000 Arkansas students receive support through local school district alternative education programs. This spring, the Commissioner of Education named representatives to an Alternative Education Task Force. The task force was convened to review law, rules, and regulations and inform the direction of alternative education in the State. The task force met in January, February, March and May with 18 active members, which included administrators, alternative education directors, federal program specialists, teachers, a legislator, and Arkansas Department of Education (ADE) leaders.

Broad topics concerning the implementation of Act 1272; other laws, rules, and regulations; program effectiveness measures and evaluation tools; and reporting requirements were discussed at the meetings. Specialized topics such as model programs, college and career opportunities, behavior management, social skills, positive branding and implementation of the program components were also discussed. Recommendations concerning the topics were developed by the task force, and ADE alternative education staff will use the recommendations in efforts to support alternative learning across the State. Task force members were recognized for their service at the Alternative Education Leadership Day at the Capitol on May 19, 2016, and later the same day at the final task force meeting.

Assessment

Assessment Update

Testing for the 2015-2016 school year has concluded with 100% online testing for all grade 3-10 assessments. Approximately 285,000 students tested online over a five-week period for ACT Aspire and 4,250 tested for the Multi-State Alternate Assessment (MSAA).

Although there were reported issues with writing responses disappearing in ACT Aspire, that Pearson is still investigating, the overall testing experience for the State was positive. The Office of Student Assessment received many positive comments about the ease of delivery and the reduction of time needed for delivery of ACT Aspire. However, concerns that testing times were not sufficient in all areas has led to adjustments for the 2016-2017 administration when approximately 10 minutes will be added to the allotted time for each test.

All reports for ACT Aspire and MSAA will be available July 1.

Gifted & Talented/AP

School Counseling and Gifted and Talented Unit Update on AP Potential™

The Arkansas Department of Education School Counseling Unit and Gifted and Talented (GT) Unit collaborated this spring to send letters to the home of each student whose PSAT score indicated that there was approximately a 70% chance that the student would be successful in an Advanced Placement (AP) course offered in the student's school. This is the first time that letters identifying AP Potential™ have been sent to students and their parents from the Arkansas Department of Education; approximately 5,000 letters were mailed.

In conjunction with the letters, communication was sent to school counselors, GT coordinators, AP coordinators, administrators, and superintendents. The information was particularly important to school counselors who used the information to assist students in course selection and encourage students who otherwise might not consider AP courses. College Board studies show that many students have the potential to take an AP course and succeed, but do not register for the course. In addition, data shows that students who score a three or higher on an AP course typically experience greater academic success in college and are more likely to earn a college degree.

Feedback from the schools about the AP Potential™ letters has been positive. Staff in both the School Counseling Unit and Gifted and Talented Unit will continue to promote the use of AP Potential™ and PSAT data to support and guide students on their paths to college and career readiness.

K-12 COMPUTER SCIENCE

A FRAMEWORK FOR DYNAMIC LEARNING

9-12 Computer Science Standards Development Update

The 9-12 Computer Science Standards Development Committee is developing and writing the state's new 9-12 Computer Science Standards and courses. The committee is composed of approximately 35 teachers, curriculum specialists, higher education representatives, and industry specialists.

There are three focus areas for these standards: coding/programming, networking/hardware, and information security/digital security and recommendations are being made regarding independent study options and internships for credit opportunities.

Service on the committee has so far involved attending six workdays (April 18-20 and May 9-11) and will conclude with two workdays in Little Rock on June 7-8. A community feedback period on the draft standards is planned; ADE is planning to present the standards to the SBE for consideration in August.

Drafts of the documents will be posted online.

Professional Development Grants

These grants were awarded to provide free professional development to Arkansas educators beginning in the spring or summer of 2016. Interested educators should note that some programs are allowing stipends in amounts up to $1,750.00 for program completion.

Governor Asa Hutchinson's $5 million Computer Science Initiative Grant is providing the $769,732.48 funding for these professional development programs.

The professional development programs were evaluated and selected based on the proposal's focus on preparing educators:

- to integrate the embedded K-8 Computer Science Standards within multiple content areas and provide guidance in how to integrate the embedded K-8 Computer Science Standards within multiple content areas to other K-8 teachers within their school, or
- to instruct students in the 7th/8th grade coding block, integrate the embedded K-8 Computer Science Standards within multiple content areas, and provide guidance in how to instruct students in the 7th/8th grade coding block and integrate the embedded K-8 Computer Science Standards within multiple content areas to other K-8 teachers within their school, or
- to prepare existing Arkansas educators to pass the assessment necessary to gain an ADE Computer Science Endorsement on an Arkansas Educator's License (or individuals in non-traditional licensure programs to pass the assessment necessary to obtain an ADE Provisional License in computer science) and teach high school level computer science content.
